Dear colleague,

This is my favorite course. We completely cover the whys and hows of the fee-based and fee-for-service models and why a fee approach might make sense for you and your clients.

This workshop is designed to immediately increase the ease with which advisors can asked for and receive fees. We teach you how to build a stable revenue platform so you can offer better service to your clients.

As in all businesses, we must constantly evolve in order to maximize the potential of our practices. The best candidates for this workshop are advisors who are constantly looking for ways to improve; who are receptive to change; who are most willing to adopt new ways to grow their practice.

Over two and a half days this course explains:

- How to price your services
- When and how to charge various kinds of fees
- How to develop wealth management services and get paid for it
- Business planning
- Practice management issues
- Implementing the transition to fees
- Overcoming the most common obstacles to a transition
- Fee advisors best practices

The course progression from simple to sophisticated is comprehensive and includes many useful tips, exercises, templates, and techniques.

I look forward to seeing you there,

Marc Lamontagne, CFP, R.F.P., FMA

You Won’t Find a More Valuable Live Fee Practice Management Course

In just two and a half days we will guide you through the “ins and outs” of charging fees. This informative and practical workshop will give you the opportunity to interact personally with a practicing fee financial advisor and guest lecturers who have been charging fees for over a decade. We’ll share the tips and tools of fee advisors; we’ll answer your questions; we’ll give you practical advice that is directly applicable to your practice. Plus, you’ll leave with a copy of the Fee Model Solutions Workbook that includes many useful templates, exercises and techniques.
This workshop is not a “system” based on one advisor who is charging fees, but a well researched course on trends in the fee model in Canada and abroad. Here are a few examples of the findings presented in this workshop:

The Fee Method Trend in Canada

- Wrap fee
- Basis-point fee
- Tiered fee
- Flat fee
- Per-plan fee
- Hourly fee

The fee trend appears to be moving strongly toward wrap fees, basis-point fees, and tiered fees. The banks and other direct distributors strongly supported wrap fees, while the latter group also believed there was a move toward tiered accounts (based on the level of relationship, e.g., platinum, gold, etc.). The investment counselors emphasized basis-point pricing.

Time to Get 75% of Assets Fee-based

</tr>
<tr>
<td>6 months to 1 year</td>

</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 to 2 years</td>
<td>25.40%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>More than 2 years</td>
<td>38.0%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

By the time the fee-based business represents 40% of an advisor’s total assets, the benefits of fee-based pricing begin to emerge and swiftly pull the advisor, rapidly accelerating the transition to a fee-based business. While it may take up to three years for advisors to get there, it will take them half that time to reach nearly 100%.

Advisor vs. Client Perception

</table>

The above survey found the actual degree of communication between advisors and clients about fees is unclear. Almost all advisors surveyed (95%) indicated they discuss their fees with their clients; only 66% of customers say that their advisor initiates fee discussions with them.
